Hey gang, kind of a weird summer going on! Please enjoy this breezy issue with a nice cool beverage, and "feel free" to get out your crayons, colored pencils, watercolors, or whatever, and COLOR THIS ISSUE. It'll look way better and it's a nice activity to do, very calming. Also it's a really interesting way to read a picture- sometimes saying a sentence out loud will give you a new take on it's meaning-- taking time out and coloring in a picture can also serve to force an investigation, and open up new paths to understanding. Not like this coloring book is crazy deep, I don't even know what this is about (because I haven't colored it in yet).

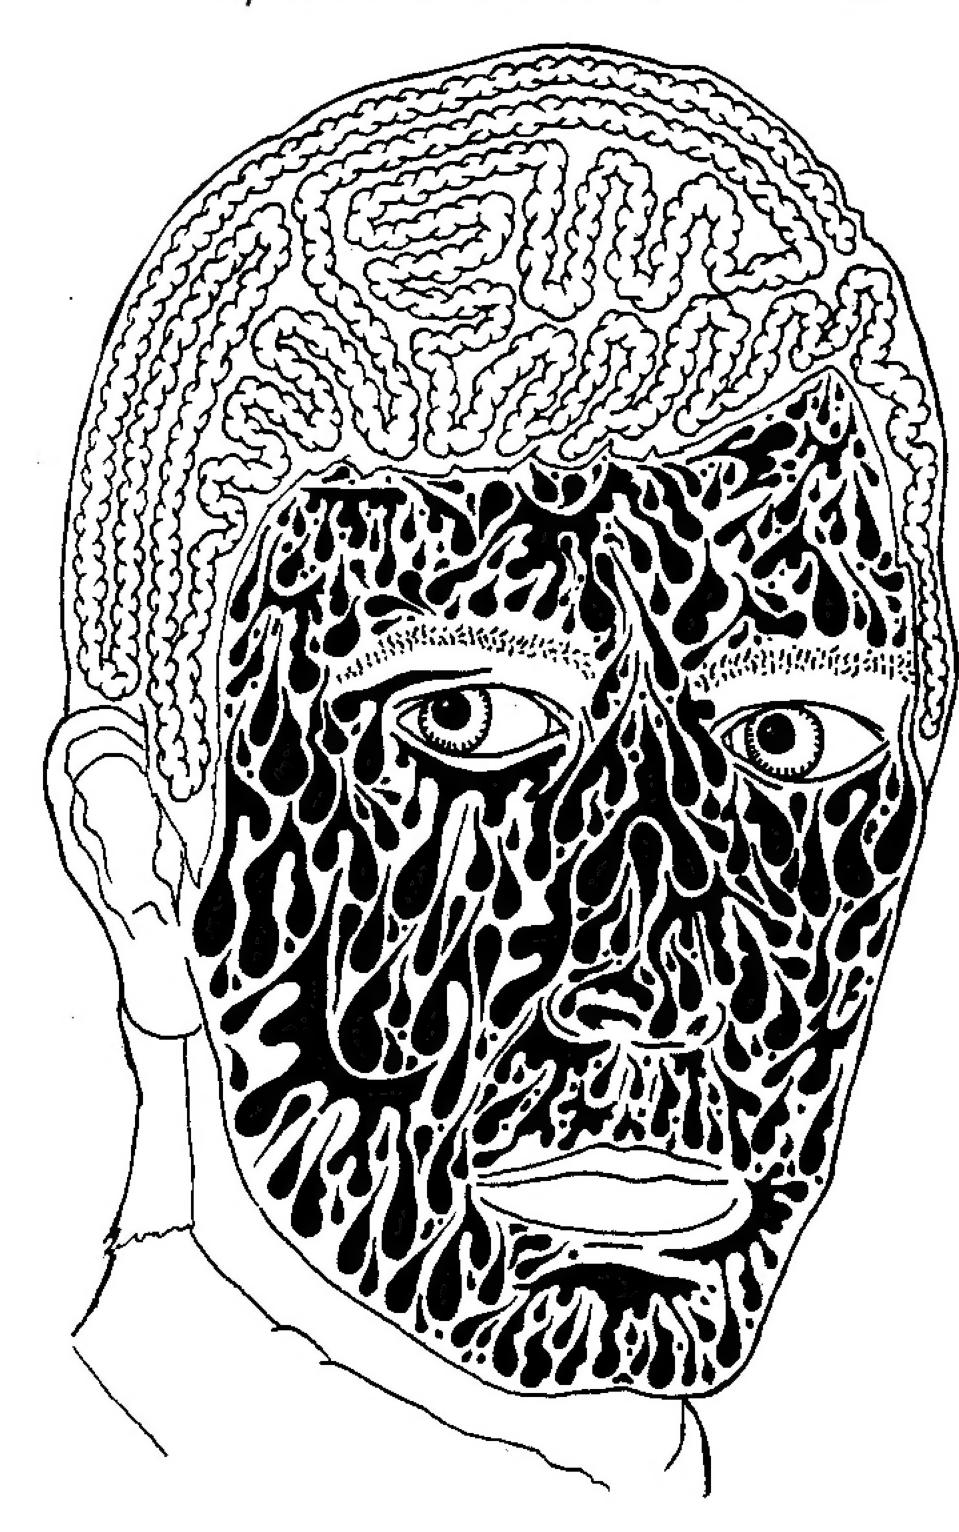

Please color in every page and if you do a really wild job please send a pic (scans preferred) to mn@mothersnews.net!

Also Philly heads plan on meeting us next month at the first Mothers News Art Show, which opens at Space 1026 in Philadelphia PA on September 7th. We will have all our magical weapons on display! Cool!!!!

mstord, Esser (18)

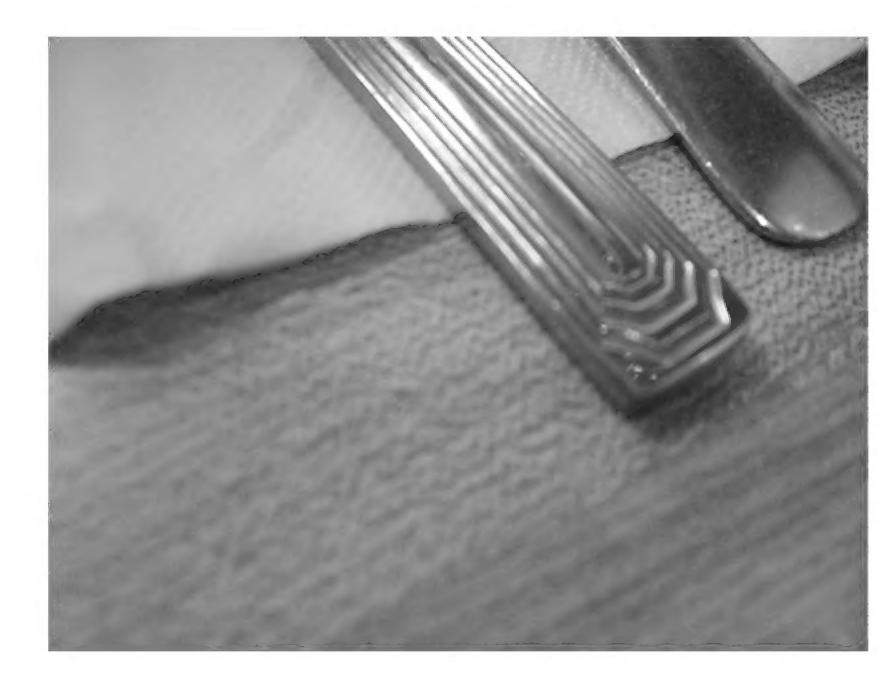

WATER WIT addressed to the French Gentleman by 'two young ladies extremely handsome,' etc. Boswell's introductory passage quoted above serves, in his Life of Johnson (indexed under "Thames, ribaldry," in modern editions), to introduce an unpublished recollection of Bennet Langton's, omitted from Rogers' Boswelliana, in which Dr. Johnson himself is shown engaged ponderously in this folk-sport.

Mr. Samuel Johnson was one day upon the Thames when the fashion of people on the river trying who should give each the worst language prevailed. Johnson's figure was a good subject for an attack of this kind from a rude fellow. Johnson thought he would for once try to give a Broadside, which he did thus, "Sir, your wife under pretence of keeping a Bawdy-house, is a receiver of stolen goods." (Boswell's italics. The Langton Ms. is quoted from C. B. Tinker's Introduction to the Oxford Standard edition of Boswell, 1933, p. xii.)

As can hardly be misunderstood, 'water wit' had and still has its principal use as a weapon of class-struggle, in which fellow Englishmen of the 'laborious classes' ('rude Fellow' means, of course, rustic and uncouth, not the more modern unmannerly) scathelessly let fly at the heads of their 'betters' under cover of folk-custom. Their targets, in turn, try to answer back in the more elegant armamentarium of their higher education, in the style of the sword-bearing, aristocratic Mohocks, also of the pre-Revolutionary 18th century, the lineal ancestors of our own juvenile delinquents (the French 'jeunesse pourrie,' or 'rotted youth') of good family, out terrorizing the town. Actually, at.

SOURCE WALL is a randomly generated table of letters for use as a navigable matrix by the active reader in the creation of ciphers, codes, and, passwords, and/or as simple linguistic noise to aid in the creation of new words, names, and concepts. For disbelievers in astrology who see the benefit of being guided by a truly random block of text assigned to a specific time period, SOURCE WALL may prove especially useful.

SOURCE WALL expresses true randomness as derived from atmospheric noise, not the pseudorandomness that is created by many so-called random number generators.
